MUSÉEMATISSE

A sensitive encounter with Henri Matisse's work

The Matisse Museum collection, one of the most important in the world in terms of richness and diversity of the works it houses, was built up thanks to the generosity of Henri Matisse and his family.

Spread over four floors, it provides a comprehensive overview of the paintings, sculptures, engravings, and drawings of one of the greatest artists of the 20th century. Closely linked to the studios in Nice where the artist created a significant part of his work, this exceptional collection is made accessible to all through temporary exhibitions with constantly updated museography, which explores the work of Henri Matisse from new angles and creates a dialogue between different periods, techniques, and civilizations.

Throughout the year, the museum offers a varied cultural program inviting everyone to explore the techniques, creative process, and legacy of Henri Matisse.

MAMAC

The MAMAC in Nice: a metamorphosis in progress

The Museum of Modern and Contemporary Art (MAMAC) in Nice houses an exceptional collection of over 1,400 pieces by nearly 400 artists, covering the major artistic movements from the 1960s to the present day (Yves Klein, Niki de Saint Phalle, Arman, and Ben, among others).
Since January 2024, the MAMAC has closed its doors to begin an ambitious renovation campaign. Ultimately, it will be integrated into a more sustainable and welcoming environment, strengthening its cultural role while contributing to the well-being of Nice residents and visitors.
Despite the physical closure of the building, MAMAC continues to bring its collections to life through "outside the walls" exhibitions, allowing Nice residents and art lovers to stay connected to the richness of its artistic heritage.

MUSÉE INTERNATIONAL D'ART NAÏF ANATOLE JAKOVSKY

The castle of naive, raw, and unique art

The Anatole Jakovsky International Museum of Naïve Art brings together a unique overview of the history of naïve, raw and singular painting.
The museum was established in 1982, following a donation by Anatole Jakovsky, in the former residence of perfumer François Coty, the Château Sainte-Hélène, surrounded by a large park filled with rare species of trees.
The collection consists of paintings and graphic works, numerous objects of folk art, furniture belonging to the Jakovskys decorated by artists, and a unique collection of documents on naïve artists, providing essential access to knowledge about these art forms. Among the most famous works are those by Bauchant, Bombois, Vivin, Séraphine, Rimbert, Lefranc, Rabuzin, Generalic, Lakovic, Grandma Moses, O'Brady, Ligabue, and Le Douanier Rousseau.
A deposit from the Centre Pompidou in Paris enriches this collection with works by Bombois, Bauchant, Séraphine, Rimbert, and others.

MUSÉUM
d'HISTOIRE NATURELLE
NICE

At the heart of natural sciences in Nice

Born from the collections of two 19th-century naturalists from Nice and enriched over the years, the Natural History Museum of Nice is now a place where very important natural science collections are preserved, but also an institution that participates in the study of nature. Particularly involved in the study of the fauna, flora, and geology of the Nice environment, the Museum offers a permanent exhibition that takes visitors on a naturalist's journey from the depths of the ocean to the highest peaks, discovering the "treasures" of biodiversity in this region, world-renowned for its landscapes at the crossroads of the Mediterranean and the Alps.

Its exhibitions, guided tours, activities, and conferences offer many opportunities to discover and raise awareness of the importance and protection of nature.

"Conserve, study, promote" is its motto!

MUSÉE archéologie
nice - cimiez

When Cimiez was Roman

This site museum is located on the hill of Cimiez, the ancient city of Cemenelum, capital of the Alpes maritimes area. This major archaeological site features the remains of three complete thermal bath complexes (1st to 3rd century), streets, a residential district with shops, and an amphitheater. There is also an early Christian complex consisting of a cathedral and a baptistery, representing the last vestiges of urban life in Cemenelum (from the 5th century onwards). The collections cover the Metal Ages and Antiquity, extending into the early Middle Ages. They evoke life in Cemenelum and the province of Alpes maritimae through numerous objects discovered during archaeological excavations of the ancient site and throughout the department.

MUSÉE de préhistoire • terra amata

Meet the first inhabitants of Nice

The Terra Amata Prehistory Museum, the first open-air museum in France, is located on the site of the excavation of the same name, which uncovered the oldest dwellings in human history, dating back 400,000 years. Through an interactive and entertaining museum tour, visitors discover the lives of the first inhabitants of Nice. In the summer, they set up their huts on the beach, at the end of a cove, near a spring. They hunted elephants, rhinoceroses, deer, aurochs, and wild boars. Their tools, choppers, hatchets, and bifaces, were mainly made from pebbles collected on the beach. The museum has three distinct types of collections: the "Terra Amata" collection, assembled during the excavation of the site; the "exotic" collections, which come from transfers from other museums in the city, donations, and purchases; and the collection of casts.

PALAIS
LASCARIS
LE JOYAU BAROQUE

A Baroque jewel in the heart of Old Nice

The Palais Lascaris is a priceless and unique example of 17th-century Baroque civil architecture in Nice. It remains the only residence of the Nice nobility that can be seen in its original state. As a reception venue, this Baroque mansion aspires to reflect the power and honor of its owner. The Lascaris-Vintimille family was one of the most illustrious noble families in the Nice region. In 1942, the City of Nice acquired the Palais Lascaris by declaration of public utility, and it was officially classified as a historical monument in 1946. Transformed into a museum, the Palais Lascaris opened its doors to the public in 1970.

The Palais Lascaris is also a venue for exhibitions, concerts, conferences, and family programming.

MUSÉEDESBEAUX-ARTS
JULES CHÉRET | NICE

A Belle Époque palace covering eight centuries of art history

The Museum of Fine Arts houses an important collection of works that trace the history of Western art from the 12th to the 20th century, enriched over time by significant donations. This former palace, a rare example of princely architecture in Nice during the Belle Époque, was built in 1878. It houses a masterpiece of the Italian Renaissance, The Crucifixion by Agnolo Bronzino (16th century), 17th-century Flemish paintings (Brueghel, Bloemaert), 18th-century works (Fragonard, Natoire, Robert, Van Loo) and an important collection from the 19th and 20th centuries : Jules Chéret, Marie Bashkirtseff, Gustave-Adolphe Mossa, Pierre Bonnard and Raoul Dufy.

MUSÉE
MASSÉNA
Nice

Villa Masséna: a Belle Époque gem in the heart of Nice

On the famous Promenade des Anglais, Villa Masséna embodies the elegance and French Riviera's art of living. Listed as a historic monument, along with its pavilion and garden, this residence built by Prince Victor Masséna combines architectural prestige and Nice's heritage.

Dedicated as the Museum of Art and History of the City of Nice, it offers a permanent exhibition tracing the formation and evolution of the city, providing the keys to understanding its UNESCO World Heritage listing as a "Winter Resort on the Riviera." Paintings, sculptures, and "objets d'art" recreate the refined atmosphere of the Belle Époque.

Temporary exhibitions celebrate the history, arts, and traditions of Nice and the Riviera, extending the discovery of local heritage.

Its garden, labeled a "Remarkable Garden," invites visitors to take a peaceful break amid Mediterranean shade and elegant landscaping.
